HAGAN HOST OF 12,000 CHILDREN

Members of Biggest May Party Ever Given in New York Enjoying Themselves in Central Park To-Day.

LITTLE ONES ARE FROM NINETEENTH DISTRICT.

In Addition to the Regular King and Queen There Is a King and Queen for Each of the Five Divisions.

Twelve thousand children, comprising he bigest May party ever given in New York, are to-day romping over the green in Central Park.

Owing to the kindness of James J. Hagan, leader of the Nineteenth Assembly District, the Amsterdam Demo-cratic Club and Tammany Hall General Committee of the District, this monster free outing, which is known as the Nineteenth Assembly District May Queen Party, will bring happiness to he hearts of thousands of little ones. Great preparations for the event have been in progress for weeks past. Mr. Hagan, chairman of the committee, has had little time for the past fortnight for any business save that relating to Everything that belongs to a success ful May party will be found at this one, All the ornaments and dignitaries that relight the hearts of pomp and splendor-loving children are here in abundance, Not only are there a king and a queen rulers of all the pageant, but also there are five subsidiary queens, rulers of the five divisions of different nationalities-American, Irish, German, Italian and the colored division.

A Royal Procession.

Besides all this array of crowned heads, there is the royal family in a hariot drawn by litle ponies; a retinue of princes and princesses, and a lovely array of one hundred flower maldens, headed by Miss Madge Hagan, daughter of the leader whose home is at No. 105 West Sixty-eighth street. The fortunate little boy and sen as king and queen, are John Conroy, ten years old, of No. 161 West Sixty-second street, and Anna Donnelly, also ten of No. 212 West Seventyeventh street.

In the little chariot following the king and queen the royal family will be found, consisting of Claire Hagan, four years old; Katherine Coleman, four years old, and George Brady, aged six. The different divigions that promptly this morning in the places assigned to them and all joined at the Amsterdam Club house, Sixtleth street and Amster-dam avenue, in one great procession. The routes selected was up Amsterdam avenue to Sixty-seventh street; through to West End avenue, up to Sixty-ninth street, through to Broadway, then down to Sixty-sixth street and over to the ntrance of the Park.

The general assembling place was the

"We'll not disappoint any if we can help it," said Mr. Hagan, good naturedly. "We won't turn any child away who has a good excuse for being with us, and I don't believe we'll be so awful particular about the excuses, either." he finished, laughingly.

Happy Children Present.

Happy Children Present.

It was worth a trip to the club-house this morning just to see the happy juvenile population of the west side.

Reaming faces, white frocks, gay little caps, flags, flowers and May poles galore, mixed in a brilliant, kaleidoscopic effect not often equalled.

The scenes Thursday and Friday at the armory, where the uniforms were distributed, were also of interest.

Though the tickets, which were given widely throughout the district, read that the distribution would begin at 3 o'clock, yet all day long little crowds of children gathered in half-fearful fashion at the big gates of the Armory.

At 2 o'clock the doors were thrown open, and from that time on a steady procession of little ones marched through from the Sixy-third street doors across one side of the big drill room, at the centre of which there were a couple of improvised counters, where the tickets were presented and the uniforms given in exchange—then out at the Sixty-second street entrance.

After 3 o'clock, when the schools were dismissed, the little procession became a throng, divided into two closely packed lines, reaching the entire length of the big drill-room, out through the halls and up the block into Columbus avenue.

They were Gertie and Gussle, if you hease, little two-year-olds who had decided to go to the May party.

According to the story told to-day by Mrs. Walters's daughter she visited one of her married daughters in another part of Brooklyn yesterday afternoon, and at about 4 o'clock, while waiting for a Graham avenue car at Tompkins and Flushing avenues, had a stroke of paralysis.

She was umble to move, she told her daughter when she got home, for several minutes, and then a car came along and she staggered out to get it. The conductor refused to stop for her. Another came along, and the conductor laughed at her but would not stop. Two other cars passed in the same way, and then the old lady, who was getting very weak, started to walk home.

Her daughter said to-day that she walked exactly thirty-nine blocks. During the walk, they say, she tried to hold up several cars, but in every
